

CCWHL "Spring Fling" Tournament

Division Guidelines

The Cape Cod Women's Hockey League strives to provide a fun, enjoyable and competitive tournament for all participants. We work closely with each team representative to ensure that fair & even teams are entered and the divisional guidelines are followed.

Women's Senior A: This division is for elite teams and players.

Women's Senior B: This division is for advanced teams and players.

Women's Senior C: This division is for players/teams that possess intermediate/advanced skills and are able to use them in a fast paced game environment. Current or former college Division I, II or III players may not play in this classification within 5 years of their college graduation. Club Team players may participate in this division with approval from the Tournament Director.

Women's Senior D: This division is for players/teams that possess intermediate skills of hockey and are working to put them together in the game atmosphere. Current or former college Division I, II or III players may not play in this classification within 10 years of their college graduation. Club Team players may participate in this division with approval from the Tournament Director.

Women's REC: This division is geared towards the "true" recreational player, who possess the basic skills and is striving to play the game at their highest level possible. Current or former college Division I, II or III players may not play in this classification. Club Team players may participate in this division with approval from the Tournament Director.
